

Minimal pairs description

The list of words called “Minimal pairs” includes pairs of words sounding the same in some dialects of English and sounding different in other dialects of English. The informants were asked to read each pair out loud and then say if the words in each pair sounded the same or different in their most natural speech.