

CHILD ASSENT FORM

Researcher will read the following to the child

Your parents have already received information about this thinking skills lesson, which will include some computer tasks, a family questionnaire and a short literacy and numeracy task. These activities are part of a University of Cambridge study of thinking skills of children living in the UK and Hong Kong. If you don't want to do an activity you may stop at any time. When you complete activities you will use your ID number rather than your name. That way, people don't know that you are the person who gave those responses. Only our research team sees your answers; we will not share these with anyone, but will put together the information we collect to present results from groups, not from individual children.

Do you have any questions? [The researcher answers any questions]. If you have questions about the project at anytime, do ask one of the research team.

Do you agree to participate in the research project?

If you agree to complete the various thinking activities with us, then print and sign your name below.
