

Inclusion of recordings in a database for research purposes: Information sheet and Informed Consent Form for young volunteers

Please complete this form after you have read the information and/or listened to an explanation about the research.

Title of Project: Speech masking effects in speech communication across the lifespan

This study has been approved by the UCL Research Ethics Committee [Project ID Number: 0534/005]

The recordings you and your friend are making with us are very important for research, not just the project we are carrying out, but to other researchers too.

For this reason, we would like to make a database on the internet with all the recordings we collect. A database is a bit like a library, you can take recordings out and look at them, but they do not belong to you. This means that other researchers at UCL and other universities could study the recordings.

We would only store your recordings in the database. Your name or personal details like your address will not be there. The recordings can only be used for research.

If you are happy to put your recordings on the database, you can sign this consent form. You can ask us to take your recording off at any time. You can still take part in the research even if you do not want to your recording to be on the database.

If you have any questions, please ask the researcher before deciding whether to agree to it. You can keep a copy of this consent form.

Participant's Statement

I

- give consent for my recordings to be included in the online database
- understand that my name or personal details will not be on the database
- understand that the recordings can only be used for research
- understand that I can ask for my recordings to be taken off the database at any time.
- I can still take part in the research, even if I do not want my recordings to be part of the database.
