

The impact of Covid-19 on recent graduates' career decisions and outcomes

1. Information for participants

This project is exploring the ways in which Covid-19 has affected recent graduates' career decisions, behaviours and outcomes. We plan to use the data to inform policy and provide graduates with the right support to help them achieve their post-graduation goals. We also aim to feedback findings to employers to improve graduates' access to employment and job opportunities.

Graduating into a pandemic must be immensely challenging and you may not have achieved what you hoped to achieve after leaving university but it is important to recognise that you are still developing positive attributes like agility, digital literacy, communication and adaptability - perhaps without even realising it. Your careers service is there to support you, so please do get in touch with them.

Are there any risks involved?

There are minimal risks to taking part in this study. The research will ensure that sensitive or personal issues are handled with due care and this includes minimising any discomfort you may feel when participating in this research. This also extends to respecting your right to withdraw from the study should you wish.

If you would like any further information about your participation in the research, including about how your data will be used and how you can request that your data is deleted or amended, then please read this participant information sheet (https://www.agcas.org.uk/write/MediaUploads/Resources/Research%20and%20knowledge/Participant\_information\_sheet\_-\_The\_impact\_of\_Covid-19\_on\_recent\_graduates%E2%80%99\_career\_decisions\_and\_outcomes.pdf) or contact the project lead, Dr Michael Tomlinson (m.b.tomlinson@soton.ac.uk).
