Exploring Children's Responses to and Engagement with Feminist Biographical Illustrated Books

Who am I and why am I doing this project?

My name is Louise and I am a PhD student at the University of Glasgow. I am researching how children respond to nonfiction books about women. The results could be helpful for people, like teachers, who want to use these books in their classrooms. I would love to invite you to take part!

What will be involved for you?

On 'Zoom' we will have an interview to talk about your reading habits and experiences

4 books will come in the post!

We will have 2 group reading sessions on 'Zoom' to look at the books and talk about what you think

We will have another interview to talk about your creations and how you found the project

Please send me photographs of your creations!

I will email you some ideas for activities you can do in response to the books, e.g. drawing, building, writing, photography. You can choose to do as many as you like or think of your own!

What happens after the project?

I will analyse my notes, the interview recordings, reading session recordings and the photographs you sent me. I will write my thesis (a long document for my PhD degree). I also hope to share what I've learnt at conferences and in books/articles.

This is called
RESEARCH DATA

What else do you need to know?

I would like to video record the interviews & reading sessions so that I can remember what we talked about

I will keep your personal data (like your contact information) safe and delete it at the end of the project

If I hear or see anything that makes me worried about your safety I will need to talk to somebody

When writing about the project I will choose a made-up name for you and check that you're happy with it. I will do my best to keep your identity a secret but this might not always be possible

You can change your mind at any time!

At the end of my PhD I will delete the research data that has clues about who you are. You can decide what happens to the data that includes your made-up name

Please contact me if you have any questions!

If you have any ideas for activities or interview questions I would love to hear them!
