We would like to present an overview (with argumentation) on the documents stored in this data repository. All document stored are written in Dutch, with exception of this document.

In the consent form signed by the participants, we did not ask for permission to make the audiotapes and transcripts of the interviews available in a data repository. The information letters with consent form for both Dutch and Flemish paediatric physical therapists are stored in this data repository.

The study concerned a qualitative study exploring paediatric physical therapists' use of motor learning strategies in teaching children with Developmental Coordination Disorder (DCD) using individual and focus group interviews. We used a conventional content analysis approach with an inductive coding strategy to analyse the transcripts of the interviews. In the interviews, we asked participants to share with us their perspectives on the construct of motor learning, and their own use of motor learning strategies in teaching motor tasks to children with DCD. In order to respect their informed consent and privacy, we can only share a limited number of documents in addition to the published article.

- In the informed consent form we stated that the audiotapes of the interviews will be deleted after finishing the study. Therefore, it is not possible to share them.
- In the transcripts, and memo's written by the researchers with each interview, participants could be identified by: 1. descriptions about their work setting and way of work, and 2. statements about their preferences and believes about the use of motor learning strategies. Furthermore, the transcripts and memo's contain sensitive information such as statements about therapists' own level of knowledge about the construct of motor learning and use of motor learning strategies, and positive and negative experiences of using motor learning strategies in specific cases. Therefore, it is not possible to share the transcripts and memo's about each interview because it would violate participants' privacy.
- In order to provide more insight into our data collection, we included the interview guides for the individual interviews and both focus-group interviews in this data repository.
- In order to provide more insight into our data analyses, we included in this data repository the memo written during the analyses process, and the codebook containing the open codes, the categories with associated open codes, and themes with associated categories.
